Are YOU ready to champion change?

LETRS® for Administrators is a professional learning opportunity designed to guide state, district, or building administrators and instructional leaders to create a Multi-Tiered System of Support (MTSS) and structures to improve overall literacy instruction.

Support systematic improvement for teachers and students

A knowledgeable leader equipped with data-driven tools and a systematic framework can make a difference by ensuring teachers are prepared to teach all students to read—especially those who struggle.

When administrators acquire the knowledge for implementing multitiered instruction to improve reading and follow the Literacy Framework in LETRS for Administrators, it will result in systematic change that leads to improved teacher effectiveness and student outcomes.

LETRS for Administrators is a resource and professional development for instructional leaders and administrators to support the impact of evidence-based early literacy instruction.

The program:

- Provides a course to help you gain insight to the literacy framework used to create a strong instructional plan
- Helps literacy leaders create efficient methods to analyze student data and establish effective instructional blocks in literacy based on a Multi-tiered System of Support® (MTSS®)
- Compatible with any quality literacy program and comprehensive assessment plan which incorporates a Response to Intervention (RtI) system to identify and intervene with students who struggle.
- Helps district leaders address the needs of teachers who would benefit from deep training on literacy instruction
- Includes tools and resources to support the navigation of district and school literacy initiatives

LETRS for Administrators allows leaders to support their LETRS professional development participants

Positively impact teachers and students in every classroom, every day, in a way that is significant and empowering

When administrators assume the role of instructional leaders and are provided with the background knowledge necessary to ensure high-quality, scientific research-based instruction is implemented, data-driven frameworks influence change, and the educational landscape begins to transform.

The district/school community evolves into one with increased achievement levels and fewer children experiencing reading difficulties

Teachers who are empowered with research-based knowledge and skills are less likely to experience burnout and low student expectations
